

WHY MANY WOMEN LACK GRACE AND BEAUTY OF FORM

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Dancer of the Metropolitan Opera Company

At the left—Exercise to strengthen the side muscles. Center—The "Windmill" exercise. At the right—Exercise to reduce the abdomen.

Repeat the movement, bending to each side alternately twelve times or more. Exercise 4—Stand erect with the hands on the hips. Bring the knees up as high as possible ten times. Then repeat the movement with the other leg the same number of times. To attain muscular control of the arms...

Develop the shoulders and chest, practice this movement: Exercise 5—Stand erect with both arms upstretched at full length. Bring the right hand over and down in front of the chest with a circular motion. Then bring the left hand in the same manner so that the arms will perform a sort of a windmill movement in front of the chest. Describe at least a dozen circles with each hand.

100 WED IN SINGLE DAY AT HAGERSTOWN FAIR

Fifty Couples, Visiting Maryland Town, Take Advantage of Ministers' Offices

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 13.—Hagerstown's best-tying parsons shared in the financial harvest of the big day at the Hagerstown Fair. They married about fifty couples, of whom one-half were Pennsylvanians. The following twenty-three happy bridegrooms with their twenty-three brides patronized the license clerk in time to go to the fair as man and wife: Ernest Robinson and Mary Bryan, Greencastle; Fred Rader and Hattie Custer, Mercersburg; Raymond C. Bell and Mabel C. Miller, Harrisburg; Joseph Cormicks and Elsie Cooper, Harrisburg; Paul C. Books and Gertrude Murray, Dismore; Charles L. Myers, Silver Springs, and Ida M. Gieseler, Middleburg; William Ott and Mary C. Ingram, Carlisle; Clarence C. Dittow, Lemoyne, and Irene G. Harter, Tittusburg; Lawrence M. Albright and Florence Storer, Carlisle; Wallace H. Smith and Fannie E. Witherspoon, Harrisburg; John W. Mitter, Landisburg, and Edith B. Smith, Cisma Run; William H. Clemens and Viola May Banks, Harrisburg; John W. Jamison and Florence Ulrich, Chambersburg; Clarence G. Lebs and Myrtle A. Glenn, Carlisle; Charles H. Hallman and Martha Hanabus, Middleburg; A. Frank Hair and Ellen E. Helen, Carlisle; Paul H. Heimbach, Elizabethtown, and Sarah May Gaines, Bachmansville; Levere Jacob Davis, Abbottstown, and Mary Kay Crook, Carlisle, Berlin; Dorsey W. Eckert and Dossie M. Detrich, Gettysburg; Roy Robert Chapman and Anna P. McDaniel, Carlisle; George F. Fiery and Grace R. Nowell, Fayetteville; Gay Emily and Florence Knaut, Gardner's Station; and Wm. H. Daley, Greencastle, and Virgil M. Miller, Wingerston.

TODAY'S FASHION

Very Newest Shawl-Collarette and Smart Velvet Hat. Collarettes are assuming the proportions of a shawl. This shawl-collarette is of tall, narrow, and is shaped to form long folds of the side and has a wide turned collar, extending far into the front. The lining is of old-ivory colored broadcloth.

Smart hat of black panne velvet accompanying the collarette. It is trimmed with black and butterfly bow of antique silver and a short maline veil is suspended from the inside of the crown instead of from the brim.

When Should the Children Eat With the "Grown-ups"?

At what age should children have their meals with the family at the table? This is a question that is asked very frequently by the housekeeper who has small children. Of course, this depends so much on the varying ages of the children that no arbitrary answer is possible, but here is what several mothers found the best practice:

If there is more than one little one in the family the pleasantest method is to have a corner of the dining room set apart for the youngsters' use, with their own little table, small chairs and small appointments like the "grown-up" table. A little bowl of dowers, tiny salt cellar, perhaps, and a small water jug, too, if they are big enough to pour for themselves. It takes time to teach the very little ones courteous table habits among themselves—offering and passing foods to each other and being helpful at the table—but children do it more easily and naturally among themselves than if artificially drilled to do it at the grown-up table, where they see plainly that their help isn't really needed.

Where the little people's table is possible the children can eat by themselves more comfortably and pleasantly until they are grown sufficiently past the infant stage to understand table conversation of their elders and conduct themselves courteously. Most mothers agree that it is neither pleasant nor helpful to have a small child at the family table. In the first place the child is likely to desire some of the food which is served, but which is unsuitable for him, and sooner or later mother succumbs to the temptation to give baby "just a wee tiny bit" of something he shouldn't have, just because it "hurts baby more to want it than to get it."

I know one family where there are five small children, but mother and father dine together alone as quietly as though they were honeymooners instead of the parents of a healthy, noisy crew. The children have their dinner at 6 o'clock—one hour before their father arrives home. They have their own little table, and ever since the older ones were big enough it has been their duty to set the table correctly, under mother's supervising eye. They help each other to feed at table, the older ones sometimes cutting up food for the smaller children. Of course, these meal times might be rather noisy festivals, but the shrewd mother has made this her reading hour with the children. They dine very quietly, indeed, so as not to miss a single word of mother's story.

The children all breakfast with the

GREATEST EXPOSITION HERE IN 1926 PLANNED

Anniversary Project for 150th Signing Proposed. Plans have been proposed for an exposition to be held in Philadelphia in 1926 to celebrate the sesquicentennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Those behind the movement hope that it will eclipse all the world's industrial fairs that have been held since the Centennial Exposition here in 1876.

CHILDREN'S CONCERT TUESDAY

Philadelphia Orchestra Recitals Under Public Ledger Auspices Planned. The first of a series of free concerts to be given by the Philadelphia Orchestra, under the auspices of the PUBLIC LEDGER, this season for the public school children is scheduled for next Tuesday night in the Academy of Music. As it is estimated that approximately 25,000 children will attend the concert this year, the Academy of Music has been advised.

According to Mayor Smith, the city is too poor to pay for Sunday concerts, and an ordinance appropriating $10,000 for a series of free concerts has lain since last spring in the Finance Committee of Council. Where, it is said, there is little likelihood of its being favorably acted upon, Arthur Judson, manager of the orchestra, however, says that he has arranged so that three of these Sunday concerts will be given this season.

PILGRIMAGE TO FARM SCHOOL

Annual Observance of Suecotoch to Be Held on Sunday. CHALFONT, Pa., Oct. 13.—A thousand persons from points in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey will assemble at National Farm School on Sunday, when the annual Suecotoch Pilgrimage will be observed. Prominent men of the country will make addresses.

They include Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of the Department of Labor; Dr. Edwin E. Sparks, president of State College; Charles Zebell, publisher, of Boston, Mass.; Henry Moskowitz, president of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, of New York; Dr. Joseph Krauskopf, Philadelphia, president and founder of Farm School; and Herman L. Collins, of Philadelphia.

Do you want a clear skin? If your skin is not fresh, smooth and glowing, or has suffered from an unwise use of cosmetics, let Resinol Soap help to clear it, in a natural healthy way! Simply use Resinol Soap regularly once or twice a day, and see if it does not quickly soothe and cleanse the pores, lessen the tendency to pimples, and leave the complexion clear, soft and velvety. When the skin is in really bad condition, spread on just a little Resinol Ointment for ten minutes before using Resinol Soap. Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are sold by all druggists. For samples, free, write to Dept. 15-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

To-day and To-morrow

These high-price times, the highest within the recollection of the oldest inhabitant, and "then some," to our mind may not always be due to scarcity of supplies, nor short crops; human nature, as a rule, is not in any benevolent business, and seeking shelter behind the usual cry of short crops, unusual demands, etc., may be, we say, may be the fine hand of a master mind, or several, directing affairs. Be this as it may, below you will find some articles used in every household, in every hamlet, town or city, and it would be advantageous to you to benefit yourself accordingly, for "where your money goes the farthest" is a profitable investment—thousands of buyers could attest to this latter statement.
